Preparations for HuntsmanClariant merger are showing remarkable progress

The preparations to create HuntsmanClariant, a leading global specialty chemicals company, are showing continued strong progress and are proceeding as planned with an unchanged closing targeted for December 2017 / January 2018.

Clariant and Huntsman have agreed on a joint strategic direction for near- and long-term value creation based on continued focus on higher growth and higher margin businesses, expansion of existing strong downstream presence, reaping benefits of complementary product portfolios and breadth of reach to deliver an additional organic sales revenue growth of around 2% p.a. at approx. 20% EBITDA margin and delivering synergies in excess of $400m as well as the $25m tax savings.

Similar margins

The merger brings together two strong specialty chemicals businesses with similar EBITDA margins at 17.2% (including synergies). It will reap complementarity benefits between Performance Products, Care Chemicals and Natural Resources, which represent approx. 35% of HuntsmanClariant combined sales and hold a comprehensive surfactants portfolio in high-end niche markets globally. It will have meaningful opportunities for growth including cross-selling potential and new product applications. The complementary assets and geographic fit provide significant commercial opportunities and more global reach within established routes to market. HuntsmanClariant's position as a leading global specialty chemicals company will further benefit from complementary R&D and technological expertise as well as shared knowledge in sustainability and cross-fertilization in innovation and technology capabilities.

The project team is progressing very well in terms of joint synergy implementation and has high confidence in meeting the synergy target in excess of $400m as well as the $25m tax saving target. Key regulatory filings are submitted, including in the US, EU and China. No regulatory roadblocks are expected to closing the deal. A preliminary CFIUS filing has also been submitted.

The best of two cultures

The joint senior management team is committed to making HuntsmanClariant a success from day 1. It is a unique opportunity to combine the best of two cultures - Huntsman's entrepreneurship and efficiency and Clariant's innovation and business excellence. Both CEOs and executive teams are fully involved in post-merger integration planning and the great working spirit confirms the cultural fit between both organizations.

Creating value

All in all, the merger will create value for all stakeholders via a stronger balance sheet, higher cash flow, increased stakeholder returns and lower financing costs and will allocate capital for organic growth and value creating portfolio management.

Highly complementary product portfolios creating production set-up and supply chain benefit opportunities

Both CEOs and executive teams confirm great working spirit

Additional organic sales revenues of around 2% p.a. at approx. 20% EBITDA margin have been identified

FAQ about HuntsmanClariant Plans

Where we are standing right now with the intended merger with Huntsman?

The merger management teams led by Bernd Hoegemann of Clariant and Huntsman's CFO Sean Douglas kicked off work in July in the various workstreams. Focus groups comprising equal numbers of representatives from both Huntsman and Clariant are now advancing the preparations for the merger. Peter Huntsman and Hariolf Kottmann, together with Kimo Esplin, Huntsman's Executive Vice President, Strategy and Investments and our CFO Patrick Jany, will steer this process and meet with the merger leadership on a regular basis.

Two activist shareholders working together have increased their investments in Clariant and have criticized the proposed merger. What does this mean for the planned deal?

Clariant is maintaining an open and trustful dialogue with all shareholders. Our strategy and the intended merger with Huntsman is supported by many of the Clariant shareholders that we have heard from. Our Senior Management is convinced that the merger will create not only significant value for the shareholders of both companies, but for all stakeholders, including employees and customers. Various financial analysts have expressed similar sentiments in conversation with Clariant.

What does the Venator IPO mean for the merger?

The initial public offering of Venator Materials Plc was completed on August 8, 2017. Huntsman expects to use the proceeds from the initial public offering to reduce its debt and strengthen its balance sheet and HuntsmanClariant's balance sheet after the merger.

Where do I find updated information on the planned merger?

Clariant installed a page on Insite, where all available information on the next steps are stored. There is also on the homepage clariant.com a merger blog with further material.
